UCM Climate Resilience Study

The UCM Board authorizes a group of UCM members charged to create a Climate Resilience Study to identify and examine options for safe, accessible, and climate-resilient facilities. The Study group will research and objectively outline the pros and cons of each option identified and examined but make no recommendations.

The Climate Resilience Study group will be chaired by Steve Gold and Paul Ohlson, who will recruit additional volunteer members as necessary; will build off the findings of the 2023 congregational survey; and will seek additional input from the congregation, staff, and other expert sources. The Study group will report progress quarterly to the Board and present its final report before December 31, 2025.
